

Positioning station for bent metal sheets before welding

The function of the stand is to stabilize the positioning of bent casing sheets during their welding process. A set of high-quality precision clamps helps ensure the repeatability of the process, and dedicated latches allow the station to be rearmed to weld different types of enclosures.

